

London Review of International Law

<https://academic.oup.com/lril>

Volume 7, Issue 1, March 2019

articles

Pathetic fallacies: personification and the unruly subjects of international law

Joseph R Slaughter

London Review of International Law, Volume 7, Issue 1, March 2019, Pages 3–54,
<https://doi.org/10.1093/lril/lrz003>

- Abstract
- View article

The invisibility of race at the ICC: lessons from the US criminal justice system

Randle C DeFalco, Frédéric Mégret

London Review of International Law, Volume 7, Issue 1, March 2019, Pages 55–87,
<https://doi.org/10.1093/lril/lrz002>

- Abstract
- View article

Critical histories of international law and the repression of disciplinary imagination

Jean d'Aspremont

London Review of International Law, Volume 7, Issue 1, March 2019, Pages 89–115,
<https://doi.org/10.1093/lril/lrz001>

- Abstract
- View article

The modern and the traditional: Islam, Islamic law and European capitulations in late Qajar Iran

Pierre-Alexandre Cardinal

London Review of International Law, Volume 7, Issue 1, March 2019, Pages 117–140,
<https://doi.org/10.1093/lril/lrz004>

- Abstract
- View article